This tool aims to better understand the violence experienced by women with disabilities. The obstacles can accumulate but are neither normal nor acceptable. The institutional obstacles undermine the efficacy of prevention and protection.

The strengthening of public policy, professional practices, and resources are necessary to improve identification, support and access to their rights. Naming this violence is the first step to preventing it.

Women with disabilities are not invisible!

A tool initiated by Soraya Almansa Director General of FDFA and created by Léonie HUMBERT, intern and student at Sciences Po and translated by Camille Whetsel, intern and student at New York University.
